Jose (Joe) Perez is the founder of Frontline Support Solutions, LLC. He has over 32 years of combined military and civilian leadership, and business management experience. He has managed diverse organizations both overseas and in Texas ranging from a four-man strategic military operations team to a 68-employee contracting company. After leaving active duty in 1998, he rejoined his family business as a principal and managed the daily operations of the award-winning minority owned and operated commercial landscape construction and facility support services company. He successfully managed the company's growth into an award winning, minority contracting firm that was ultimately recognized by the US Small Business Administration as the 8(a) Graduate of the Year in 2006. Using the combination of his military service, federal and commercial contracting experience, and commercial business management experience Joe established Frontline Support Solutions. Frontline is a facility support services and general construction contractor whose primary market is the Department of Veteran Affairs, US Army, and US Air Force. He has also begun to focus attention towards supporting needs identified within the USDHS, USEPA, USDA, and USDEA.

In May 2010, Joe created Frontline Support Solutions, as a facility support services and general construction firm. He is taking the leadership and international experience he gained while in the US Army, and is combining it with what he has learned as a successful federal contractor to create job opportunities for a segment of our population that is inherently skilled. One that has the demonstrated ability to achieve the near impossible – our Military Veterans. He created this company as a vehicle to provide employment opportunities to fellow veterans interested in federal contracting opportunities. He knows that if properly instructed to perform work in the diverse and demanding federal contracting arena they will identify the niche in the federal marketplace that they can fill and succeed in.

Joe has extensive experience performing on contracts ranging from one time small micro purchases to a $6,000,000 multi-year construction and service contract on the Port Authority of San Antonio, formerly known as Kelly AFB, Texas. Joe is a hands-on leader that can quickly assess a situation and make appropriate decisions as necessary to provide his customers with the product they require.

Joe has attended various executive level business development courses at nationally recognized institutions. In addition, he has attended various minority business development courses at Dartmouth College, the University of Texas at Austin and San Antonio, and Oklahoma State University. He has studied small group dynamics, leadership, and integrated operations at the USAF Special Operations School, and the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Joe is married and has five children. He is a board member of the San Antonio Chapter of the Entrepreneurs Organization. He is an active member of the Hispanic Contractor's Association, and has served as a member of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors on various occasions.
